

Easter was such a wonderful day. We had a tremendous crowd, the music was powerful. There is a special energy that permeates Easter unlike any other Sunday. Why do you think that is so? Is it the new clothes? Could it be that the large crowd energizes us? Are the words of "up from the grave He arose" more stirring to our hearts than the hymns of other weeks? I think it is all of the above and more.

The music, the excitement of new clothes and faces, they all excite us. I think most importantly, though, is the fact that we come celebrating a day of hope for all of us, a day that has changed our world forever. In other words, there is a special attitude about Easter Sunday that seems to be missing the rest of the year. There is anticipation that exists the moment we enter the sanctuary. We can recreate that same Easter "spirit" every week if we would approach each Sunday with the same "Easter attitude." Our joy in Christ through worship should not depend on the size of the crowd but on the thrill of being in the presence of the Lord. After all, we are promised that "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." I encourage you to work with me to encourage an "Easter attitude" every week. It can be done, but it will take at least two or three of us...

Working together,

Bill
