Fall is finally here! I love the crisp, cool temperatures and the changing of the colors of the leaves. This time of year is always a reminder of God's grace and provision. As we prepare for the "Harvest," we need to evaluate where we are and what part we are to play in it. As the Bible tells us, "The harvest is plentiful but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field." Matthew 9:37-38. Each one of us has been given a job to do by the Lord of the harvest, so how do you approach your duty? When one worker is weary and complains about his job, it effects how other laborers around view their position on the work force. Harvesting is hard work, and depending on the season of growth, can often be very unproductive. It takes all hands pulling together and supporting each other in order that the work gets done on time. As teenagers, my brothers helped bring in hay for a local farm every summer. The work was hard, but paid well. There was always a timeline, a storm was brewing and the hay had to be stored. The storms of life are coming from all directions. Are you willing to help get the work done today? Volunteer today, we could use a few more laborers. For His glory,

Michelle
