This past Sunday was the Super Bowl and in just a few weeks we will enter March Madness. When it comes to sports people are devoted to their teams and passions run high. People wear their team's colors and don their paraphernalia. They spend hundreds of dollars buying season tickets or tickets to championship games. They clear their schedules and drop everything when it's "game time." People watch the game with excitement and anticipation. Even when watching in their home they cheer when their team scores and yell when they don't like what happens, as though their voice will travel through the TV and make a difference to the outcome of the game. Then there are all the superstitions: What they WEAR, HOW they watch, WHEN they watch, WHERE they watch, even IF they watch the game. Imagine what a difference it would make in our corporate worship and individual spiritual lives if people were as passionate about worship as they are about sports. There is no telling what God could do and how He could move if people came to worship with such a level of excitement and anticipation, ready to truly meet with their Lord and Creator.

Imagine what it would be like if people cleared their schedules and dropped everything when it's "worship time," both at church and in their daily lives. Nothing around them would matter because they would be in presence of the Most Holy. If everyone truly believed that their presence in worship really mattered and that they make a difference in the life of the church they wouldn't want to miss worship. That's how it will be in Heaven, but oh how great it would be if Earth could be that way as well.

I'm not saying that enjoying sports is bad. But why don't people give God, the maker of the Universe, as much?

Going on now through Sunday, February 27, 2011 (9 weeks) the Deacons will be leading a study of the Fruits of the Spirit, with a different gift covered each week. A different Deacon will be responsible for each Sunday evening. Come be part of this wonderful study!

Andy Stanley is BACK!

We recently enjoyed Andy Stanley's "Go Fish" series, now here is your opportunity for another round with this excellent Bible teacher. We began this study Wed., Jan. 12th. Each week we will present his 6 week series titled "Take it to the Limit."

This series is designed to teach us the biblical principles for getting more out of less. In an age of financial uncertainties this is a refreshing word on living life to the fullest while learning to live within our means.

Join us on Wednesday evenings at 6:00 for this very timely study.
