Over the last ten days, as Ashley and I have worked to transition from life in Carlisle to life in Louisville, there is one question we have heard over and over again: "Are you all moved in?" Well, the answer to this question is, "Kind of." Yes, Ashley and I have unloaded all of our stuff and moved it into our apartment. Yes, all of my books and files have been moved into my office at the church. But we're a long way from being "all moved in."

Our new apartment is still filled with boxes waiting to be unpacked. My office is still cluttered with books waiting to find their place on my shelves. And our poor little dog is still trying to adjust to apartment life. Yes, we have moved to Louisville...but we're a long way from being settled.

The same is true of our new church home. Each of you has been waiting for a long time for your new pastor to arrive, and now I'm here. I've preached my first sermon, worked a few hours in my office, and spent time talking with many of you. So it's easy to feel like we're all moved in and ready to go, but this isn't quite true...we still need to settle in.

Over the next few days, weeks, and months we'll get to know each other. You'll learn what kind of preacher and pastor I am, and I'll learn what kind of church Melbourne Heights is and what kind of person each of you is. Along the way we'll unpack stuff about each other we like and stuff that we're unsure about, but eventually we'll get settled in together and begin building the kingdom of God together.
